DEDICATION

MR. LUTHER P. ETTINGER

THE SENIOR CLASS of June, 1929, dedicates its pictorial edition of The Prospector to Luther P. Ettinger, whose never-failing supply of refreshing humor has brightened many days for them. His homely philosophy has given them a new outlook on life, even as his original manner of conducting his classes has indelibly impressed on their minds a knowledge of his subject. By "being himself" he has endeared himself to them as few others have done.

Mr. Ettinger was graduated from Central State Normal (State Teachers' College) in 1904. In 1909 he graduated from the University of Michigan, where he was the only first year man ever elected to Acolytes, a philosophical honor society. Mr. Ettinger has been a teacher of physics at Southwestern since the school opened in September, 1916. He is the head of the exact science department at Southwestern and Nordstrum.

GOLDEN NUGGETS

JUST four years ago, a band of young and daring Prospectors staked a claim at Southwestern. From older and wiser miners they had heard tales of gold, which, if searched for diligently, would reward them with amazing riches.

So for four years ye Prospectors delved patiently among the mines of knowledge and bit by bit they unearthed precious nuggets of knowledge. Apparently they worked both wisely and well; for upon weighing the golden bits of wisdom they were found to have made the average 1.96, a high mark, of which any group of Prospectors might be proud.

Now they have packed away their implements; and carrying their wisdom with them, they are off on the next step of the journey to trade their gold for coveted positions in the world of business.

Perhaps they will have to bargain for a time before the world is convinced of their worth; perhaps bits of the gold will be found to be dross; but with the splendid goal they have obtained in four short years, we prophecy that the greater fortunes are yet to be uncovered by our tried and true Prospectors.

A QUESTION OF VALUE

Through with school! Through with books! Through with studying! Graduation is here; soon a precious diploma will show that four years of hard work have passed. One is tired,—weary, but educated(?).

A young student, his diploma tightly clutched in his hand, is on his way home from the graduation exercises. A broad smile constantly flits to and fro over his face, his eyes sparkle in the dim light, and his step is brisk and joyous. Why? The young man thinks he is educated. Does not his diploma show that? Still striding on, he arrives at a small river which is crossed by means of a bridge. Midway across, a sudden gust of wind tears the diploma from his hand and carries it into the river. It is lost; nothing is left to designate him as an educated young man.

The scene changes—another young graduate is seen emerging from the school-house in the same predicament as the previous one. This student realizes the real value of an education. He has studied hard, has learned his lessons, and has learned the way to study. He knows that graduation from high school does not mean that he is educated. He realizes that it is only a start towards greater achievements. He has learned in high school that which many have not, that to keep up with this modern world, one must study until death not only knocks at the door, but really enters the room.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Thomas A. Edison is seeking an American school boy to take his place and carry on his work.

The boy will be selected by means of one of Mr. Edison's famous questionnaires; he then will be awarded four years' tuition in any technical school of his choice.

The governor of each state will be asked to designate one student who is the best representative of American manhood and possesses the highest ability in scientific subjects during the past school year of 1928 through 1929.

Each of the forty-nine winners will receive a free trip to the Edison laboratories, where they will be asked to answer the questionnaires which will be prepared by Mr. Edison.

This is a wonderful chance for some fortunate school boy. The days of great opportunities are not over. This time opportunity is making a lot of noise knocking on the door so that every school-boy can hear it.

A FITTING PROFESSION

Now that school is about to close, graduates will soon be facing the world and seeking a profession. But have they thought seriously about the kind of business into which they would like to go—the kind that would appeal most to their imagination and taste, and to which they could adapt themselves readily? This self-analysis is one of the most important considerations confronting a person about to choose a profession.

He must inquire where he will fit in so as to give the best service, develop the greatest power, and win the highest distinction. It is for himself to choose the profession in which he is interested—law, medicine, literature, finance, commerce, or industry.

VALEDICTORY

By EDNA KIRSTEN

HOW often have you heard someone say, "Oh, what good is all that schooling to do him? When he gets out into the business world he'll have to start at the bottom and go up, just like anyone else."

I am sure we have all heard these words, many many times, and, sometimes, rather unconsciously, we have used them ourselves. We might have changed the wording a little and said, "Well, I'd like to know what good Latin is going to do me if I'm going to be a stenographer? The boss certainly won't dictate to me in Latin." Or, "This English literature won't do me any good if I'm going to be an engineer."

Maybe we are right, and maybe we are not.

Not long ago I read an article by Dr. Frank Crane, in which he said that any type of business person would be more apt to succeed if he knew his Latin, history, and Shakespeare, because Latin, history, and Shakespeare each help to give one that "all-roundness" which is so necessary to success. He went on to say that "all-roundness," which is no more than a good, solid background upon which to base the knowledge that you learn from experience, is more essential to success than technical finish.

Your employer may find that you haven't the necessary technical finish for the position you hold; but when he finds that you can talk intelligently, as I know all of you can, about many other subjects, he will keep you on the job, because he knows it won't take long for you to learn the mere routine of your work.

We all know that none of us has technical finish. We couldn't possibly have it in the short time we have been here; but in these four years we have received an education, which, as our motto says, is "not just for school, but for life."

When we leave Southwestern tomorrow night, we shall all start together at the bottom of the ladder; but because of the time we have spent and the effort we have put forth here at Southwestern, we are not going to stay at the bottom of that ladder as long as the other fellow. We are going to climb steadily, even as we did here.

And, friends, I know and you know, that we are

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

By RUTH UHLEMAN

FRIENDS: After four years of careful preparation and earnest efforts, we greet this day with a feeling of satisfaction for our accomplishment, mingled with one of sadness at parting. I am sorry to think that in a few short days our pleasures and duties here at Southwestern will come to an all too sudden end. In the few years we have spent here we have made many acquaintances, some of which have resulted in cherished friendships; friendships which have filled our many school days with joys and pleasures, and in which we have stood side by side through smiles and tears. I hope these friendships will never cease.

Many things were accomplished by the splendid co-operation of each one of you. Since each of us has a duty to perform, we must now part. So let us go forth with high ideals and a spirit of determination. Play the game fair and square, because there is something more than worldly goods in life.

I want to take this opportunity to express our gratitude to our parents. Without your unceasing care and help we might never have been able to experience the thrill of this day—Commencement.

Our graduation would not be complete without some recognition of our teachers, whose guidance and co-operation have aided in training us for this day. They have not only taught us our lessons, but they have shown us that we have a duty to perform to the world and to our country, as American citizens.

We are leaving Southwestern; some may never return; but I hope a welcome will always await those who do. It is with high hopes for the future that we, the class of June, 1929, say, "Fare thee well" to all our friends and the faculty.

THE TWENTY-NINERS ABROAD

By PAUL DINGER

FOR twenty long years I had been wandering aimlessly about Europe and living on an annual income of $10,000 per year, alotted to me by my deceased Uncle Gus. This income was now cut off, and I was forced to return to the U. S. to find employment in order to support myself. I passed through many European cities on my way; and at last I found myself in Hamburg, Germany, ready to embark on the steamer "Rotterdam" for America.

It was late one afternoon when I stopped at a typical outdoor cafe on the main boulevard, in the vicinity of the boat piers. When I received no attention by rapping on the table gently, I resorted to hammering with an empty cup left by another customer. A waitress soon appeared. To my surprise I discovered that she was my old classmate, Irene Demchak. After she had brought my order of famed Lindquist cheese, we sat and chatted for a while. She informed me that she, Mary Gulyas, Ruth Burgess, and Anna Drumm left America for Germany in hopes of finding blonde men in great abundance. She also told me that Albert Topor and Maurice Lawyer, with their wives, Virginia Zelinske and Alice Pilson, were touring the Mediterranean countries in the giant zeppelin of the Gruitch and Farber Airways of Germany.

Presently our conversation was rather rudely interrupted by a huge, burly brute, whom I recognized as James Price. We were indeed glad to see each other again. He said he was the owner of the place, and he took Irene over to wait on another customer. Being thus left alone, I arose from the table and went on my way down toward the boat.

As I passed a police station, a familiar cry, "Hoof! Hoof!" greeted my ears. Upon turning around, whom should I see but the illustrious "Four Horsemen," namely, Tom Wood, Sid Wise, John McCormick, and Frank Taylor, who comprised the mounted police force of Hamburg. Frank, the Lieutenant, ordered a horse for me and I was escorted to the boat. After bidding them a hearty goodby and thanking them, I boarded the liner.

Sensing a need for nourishment, I wended my way into the cafeteria. At a table in the center of the room a large crowd was gathered. Closer inspection revealed Julius Pavella, Julius Gaspar, Willard Shumate, and Everett Klusman participating in a pie-eating contest, under the supervision of the chef, William Carney and James Anderson, while Newton Baxter and Albert Stull were unloading pies from a cart. Not wishing to interrupt their experiment, I seated myself at a table by a window. I had no sooner seated myself, than a crowd of waitresses dashed madly towards me. Among them I recognized Laurene Golm, Gertrude Conrad, Winifred Bergstresser, Ethel Link, and Dorothy Miller. After much quarreling it was finally agreed that Dorothy Miller should wait on me. After bringing my order she told me that our schoolmate, Albert Springstein, was the captain of the liner we were on, and that there were many more of our old friends on board. Thanking her, I went out on the deck again and to my great surprise I saw no sign of land.

The next morning I was awakened rather early by Glenn Steffes, who had attained the high rank of porter. Finding that he had shined my shoes and placed my stateroom in order, I gladly gave him a couple of second-hand German street car transfers and begged him not to spend them all in one place.

My first thought upon stepping out into the bright sunshiny morning was to see Captain Springstein. Upon arriving at the Captain's cabin I paused; then I slowly and quietly opened the door. True enough, there in one corner sat the same old "Al," just as I knew him way back in high school, except that he was much stouter and had a cute mustache. After a very hearty welcome, he decided to introduce me to his crew. He first introduced me to the wheelsman, Alphonse Pryjomski, and told me he obtained his position because of the experience he received from driving his Chevrolet to and from high school. Leaving the captain's cabin, we went to the crew's quarters, where I was introduced to the first mate, Louis Svitkovich; second mate, Steve Vargo; chief navigator, Harold Oke; steward, Stanley Wright, and first assistant steward, William Zaglidi. We then went to the lower portions of the liner, where I met Severino Bogozzi, chief engineer; Harry Hobley, first assistant engineer, and Geza Pasternak, second assistant. Besides two of the huge Jones and Johnson steam turbines, I saw a group of oilers in greasy overalls. Herb Ockenfels seemed to be the boss of the oilers, and was directing their work. From my point of view they appeared to be Harold Brown, Philip Hamel, Henry Krigner, Randal Gray, and Merrick Howe.

As we moved further into the maze of machinery, we approached the massive boilers. Here I saw Ernest Hartman, Walter Kusack, and Angus Morrison heaving huge shovelfulls of black diamonds into the roaring firebox. On a bench toward one side I saw

ON THE SHIP WITH THE SENIORS AS THEY RIDE INTO THE FUTURE

The seniors can look back over their last term and tell things that they have accomplished with more assurance than their class prophet can describe the future.

The boys have won the attendance cup. One of the boys, William Csircsu, was chosen a member of the All-State Orchestra.

The girls have won the scholarship cup and have accomplished the impossible by choosing their commencement dresses in one short week.

John Binkiewicz, Floyd Page, and William Neff resting for the next shift with the shovels.

This concluded our visit to the engine room; and again we found ourselves out in the fresh air and sunshine. All of a sudden we heard a lot of chattering and squeaking aft on the starboard side. We immediately proceeded in that direction, expecting to see a fight among the sea gulls which had been hovering over the deck all morning. Our hopes were somewhat diminished when we found merely Dolly Alexander, Elizabeth Parker, and Henrietta Dattner making a big fuss over Eleanor Diedrich's new dress. They declared it the greatest creation since the time Helen Kleiman tried to make one of her own back in high school.

Not being particularly interested in dressmaking, we turned around and went towards the gymansium. Al led the way and we were soon there. In a ring set up in the center of the gymnasium was the internationally famous heavyweight boxer, Louis Gulyas, crashing thunderous lefts and rights to the sturdy chest of his sparring partner, Bradley Howe. The round was soon over and Louis' manager, Carmine Scafuri, commenced to rave about Louis' weaknesses and give him advice, while the seconds, Douglas Gordon and John Hagopian, gave him a rub down. Toots told us that his brother Steve was running a hand laundry in Delray. Looking upon the track we saw Zolton Bakos, pole vaulter, Tony Sargenti, tennis ace, and Joe Kastely, high hurdle flash, all training vigorously to regain wind lost in securing their overwhelming victories in the recent Olympic games.

Al then took me to the swimming pool, where we saw the Olympic swimming victors, John Mahin, Edgar Killian, and William Kamarosky, enjoying a dip. On the diving board was Herbert Marien, high diving artist, who had deprived America of another winner by turning professional.

Al then took me to the lounging room and library. At the end of the room in a large leather chair I saw Elsie Peterson, Queen of Wall Street, listening to her private secretary, Bessie Hopkins, give the stock reports as they flowed from a ticker on her desk.

A few feet away Lucille Emerick, Dorothy Grunewald, and Helen Emick were jumping up and down in great excitement. Investigating, I discovered that a game of chess between Fern and Olive Blair was the cause of the din. In a more prominent place in the room, a television apparatus was broadcasting the world events of the week. Being interested in current topics, I thought I would watch awhile. At this point Al had to leave me to carry out some of the duties of his position as captain. In the television I saw and heard James Nelson receive a large inscribed silver golf ball, significant of the mid-west golf championship. Clara Knitli, president of the Knitli and Keppen Golf Ball Company, presented the trophy. Clara referred to him as the second Bobby Jones. His caddy, Charles Maniuk, was seen on the screen, but not mentioned. I saw Aluva Miller, Irene Nagy, and Dorothy Hoy being awarded crocheted dishcloths for winning three first places in a dishwashing contest, sponsored by the Ridley and Kovacs Flexible Dishpan Company. Next we saw that Amphion Sheldon, world renowned magician, was appearing before the Queen of England, with his co-partners, Edith Karnatz and Velma Srocka. This ended the current events, and the program was then turned over to Suzane Hovorka's syncopators, under the direction of Bert Roffina, who was to sing with the orchestra.

Remembering Bert's voice in the old days at Southwestern, I decided to take a stroll in the peaceful solitude of the deck. Just as I stepped out of the lounging room, whom should I meet but Ruth Uhleman, President of our Senior Class. She invited me to step in at a party she was giving in her palacial suite.

On the way there, Ruth told me that Myrtle Parker, Margaret Reed, and Elveretta Simpkins had just received degrees from one of the greatest universities in Germany. She said the party was in their honor. I also learned that Ruth was international correspondence agent for the Woodford and Thompson Bankers of Detroit, and that, while in Switzerland settling accounts with the Schamp and Hittinger Cheese Company, she met our old-time friend, Louis Varga, Commodore in Chief of the entire Swiss navy.

We now arrived at Ruth's stateroom. A dance was just starting. Dorothy Stoll was at the piano, and Lorene Linck was trying to play a harmonica, while Ida Benko was putting her saxophone together. Among the dancers I noticed Walda Behnke, Mildred Handyside, Mable Scaife, and Dorothea Gailey, who seemed to be enjoying themselves immensely. Ruth and I were pushed aside by the maids, Stella Szatkowski and Esther Dittman, who were bringing in refreshments. They in turn were mobbed by Mildred Kuehn, Dorothy Weiss, Harriet Brown, and Menetta Hecht in a mad stampede for food.

The excitement was too much for me; I just had to get out in the fresh air again. After bidding Ruth and her friends goodby, I stepped out onto the deck again. As I was standing at the rail, gazing at the horizon, I heard the roar of an airplane motor on the runway in the front of the ship. It was the regular Mid-Atlantic to New York mail plane about to depart. The pilot was J. B. Angell and his mechanic Irene Becsky, the only woman in the air mail service. The plane soared majestically upward and the drone of the motor soon died away as the plane was lost from sight.

A week later we docked at Detroit, having passed through the St. Lawrence waterway route, recently constructed through the efforts of the master engineers and builders, Paul Matthews and Hubert Furr. After passing the inspection of the customs officers, Edward Bator and Earl Friese, I walked through the

HISTORIC INCIDENTS

By FRANK TAYLOR

HOW vivid in our memories is that sunshiny September morning, four short years ago, when a bunch of flushed and feverish freshmen made their debut in this great institution of knowledge. Although the rest of the student body acted cold toward us, Mr. Murdoch's warm smile and welcome assured us that we would receive the best of treatment. Our great ideal after the first day in this institution was to possess that same dignity which the seniors seemed to have.

Our freshman year was a very successful one. Playing under the banner of Nordstrum, our boys won the city basketball championship. Our scholarship and attendance records were very high, and everything pointed to a successful sophomore year.

Upon our return in September, we thought it fitting and proper to look with disdain upon the incoming freshmen. In this year we find the first athlete from our group trying out for a Prospector squad. This was Carmine Scafuri, who won a half-back's berth on the Southwestern team. Our first attempts this year to crash the upper classmen dances proved futile; evidently we hadn't reached the "big shot" stage yet. We were well represented in athletics this year; Carmine Scafuri, Willard Shumate, and Edward Bator in basketball; John McCormick in cross-country; Carmine Scafuri, Willard Shumate, Frank Taylor, and Jack Thompson in baseball. The sophomore girls were also represented in athletics, for Esther Dittman and Ruth Uhleman placed in track. They were on one of the best girls' relay teams the school has ever had. That team won the city championship.

Upon our return in the fall of 1928, all the junior boys were combined into one group under Mr. Dail and Miss Tucker. Our junior year was spent in glorifying ourselves in scholarship and athletics. The timid freshmen of 1925 had learned to dance with the best of them. Songs were composed for the two groups, by Esther Dittman. Willard Shumate was at the head of the entertainment committee for the year.

Our semester as 12-B's was climaxed by the Junior-Senior Prom, held in the Southwestern gym. This year the 12-B girls and 12-B boys led the honor roll for all markings. The most outstanding athletic event of the semester was the Junior-Senior basketball game for the championship of the school. The first game was won by the seniors, 16 to 15, and the second was won by the juniors, with five points to spare.

Our ideal was now realized, when we entered upon our senior year. Rings, pictures, and parties occupied the first part of the semester. For the first time in the history of Southwestern High School, a girl was elected president. Ruth Uhleman was the lucky lady, chosen to lead this mighty class of 1929. This was nothing unusual for her, though, for she had led her own group since the freshman year. Thomas Wood was elected vice-president of the class; Clara Knitli, secretary; and Raymond Woodford, treasurer.

At last came the time when those who had dramatic aspirations got their chance to demonstrate their ability in the tryouts for the senior play. After the final selections, Miss Tucker's cast included Herbert Ockenfels, Kenneth Lindquist, Ruth Uhleman, Dolly Alexander, James Nelson, and Alice Pilson. Miss Kruke's cast consisted of Dorothea Gailey, Mary Ridley, William Csircsu, and Frank Taylor.

Four boys, John McCormick, Thomas Wood, Sidney Wise, and Frank Taylor, banded together in a club called the "Four Horsemen." The boys claimed they organized this club to avoid walking. They wanted to gallop.

Days of anxiety hung over the auditorium as the seniors were trying to decide where to have commencement. After much arguing and voting, it was finally decided to have commencement at City College.

And now we reach the goal for which we have striven for four years—graduation. May our future days be as happy as the days we have spent in this institution.

A Fitting Profession

Given a good mind, good health, keen thinking, and a solid educational background, there is no limit to the success that persistence may obtain for one who knows absolutely what he can do and wants to do.

Merely to have a desire for knowledge is not enough. The student must know what his capacity is for bringing that knowledge to full realization. This he cannot know until he has studied his likes and dislikes, his ability, and his interests. Once he has found the type of work that he would like to do, the problem of the student is to master it.

THE WILL OF THE FAMOUS

"BEING OF SOUND MIND—"

...Will...

The Senior Class of June, '29, having accumulated through four years of high school a vast store of treasures, singular traits, and characteristic habits, do hereby pass on these heritages to their successors, the Juniors. These are to be regarded as symbolic of the Class of '29's good will and best wishes to the class of January, '30. May they use them to their best advantage.

WE, the Senior Class of Southwestern High School, City of Detroit, and State of Michigan, being of sound mind and understanding, do hereby will and bequeath to the future seniors the following valued treasures which we have gained at this illustrious institution:

I, Thomas Wood, do will and bequeath to Archie Hogan some of my unlimited popularity with the girls.

I, Ruth Uhleman, do will and bequeath to Lucille Myles my ability to officiate at group meetings.

I, Kenneth Lindquist, do will and bequeath to John Harris my part in the senior play.

We, John McCormick and Jack Thompson, do will and bequeath to Jack Efrusy about two feet of our height.

I, Herbert Marien, do will and bequeath to Stephen Nagy my great athletic ability.

I, Frank Taylor, do will and bequeath to David Rennie a set of tools for his Essex.

We, Zolton Bakos and Louis Rinna, do will and bequeath to George Hughes our ability to toe dance.

I, Sidney Wise, do will and bequeath to Eric Zisman my ability to make funny faces.

I, Bert Roffina, do will and bequeath to Robert Burns my ability to sing.

We, Dolly Alexander and Helen Emick, do will and bequeath to Lucille Rugg our bewitching giggles.

We, Stanley Wright, Charles Manuik, and Alger Banonis, do will and bequeath to Albert Kish our track shoes. May he find a pair to fit him.

We, Edward Malensky and Maurice Lawyer, do will and bequeath to Bennie Kindig our ability to frighten the freshmen in the library.

I, Willard Shumate, do will and bequeath to Ernest Wirth my ambition to become valedictorian.

I, Ethel Link, do will and bequeath to Eleanor Grzywinski my illustrious nickname of "Migli."

I, J. B. Angell, do will and bequeath to William Nason the pair of old trousers hanging in my locker.

We, Merrick Howe, Stephen Scafuri, Walter Kusak, and William Zaglidi, do will and bequeath to any junior boys our ambition to sing during record period.

We, Irene Demchak and Esther Dittman, do will and bequeath to Ola Laughlin our job of entertaining the seniors with piano music.

I, Virginia Zelinske, do will and bequeath to Margaret Demchak my ability to vamp the senior boys.

I, Harriet Brown, do will and bequeath to Kathryn Covert my chewing gum, which is under the teacher's desk in 221.

We, Winifred Bergstresser, Ruth Burgess, Gertrude Conrad, and Margaret Reed, do will and bequeath to Billie Linn our ability to startle the school with our poetry.

I, Irene Becsky, do will and bequeath to Vera Benn my part as Spanish dancer in the senior play.

I, Randall Gray, do will and bequeath to Percy Coolman my ability to lead cheers.

I, Julius Gaspar, do will and bequeath to George Olah my handball ability.

We, James Nelson and William Csircsu, do will and bequeath to Charles Komondy our ability to write excellent slogans.

We, Joseph Kastely and Everett Klusman, do will and bequeath to Roger Mullican our ability in commercial geography.

I, Hubert Furr, do will and bequeath to Zegment Galarowicz my talkative nature.

I, Ray Woodford, do will and bequeath to William Voellmig my ability to collect money from the seniors.

We, Anthony Sargenti and Severino Bagozzi, do will and bequeath to Hubert Knoch our fondness for freshmen girls.

We, James Price and Bradley Howe, do will and bequeath to John Cortese our book entitled, "Tall Men and How to Get There." We don't believe in it.

We, Aluva Miller and Elsie Peterson, do will and bequeath to Adeline Leicht our borrowing natures.

I, Paul Mathews, do will and bequeath to Louis Horvath my large foundation.

I, Herbert Ockenfels, do will and bequeath to Alfred Ambrose my tough nature.

I, Paul Dinger, do will and bequeath to George Horvath my brute strength.

We, Alphonse Pryjomski and Edward Bator, do will and bequeath to Frank Arvai our ability to manipulate a Chevrolet.

We, James Anderson and John Binkiewicz, do will and bequeath to Jack Crysler our ability to see through Thurston's magic tricks.

We, Helen Kleiman and Clara Knitli, do will and bequeath to any two Junior girls our ability to be very close friends.

I, Marion Merrill, do will and bequeath to Gertrude Toth my ability to "orate" loud and long in English class.

We, Lorene Linck and Ida Benko, do will and bequeath to Anna Barry our singing ability.

I, Edna Kirsten, do will and bequeath to the next valedictorian my troubles in writing a speech.

ONE HUNDRED THIRTY-FIVE

By JOHN McCORMICK

WE, THE Seniors of June, 1929, who have cherished our natural talents and anticipated heirlooms for so long a time, are now prepared to part with them. We are bequeathing them to our successors, the January class of 1930, with the hope that they will realize their great value and feel the sentiment attached to each minute endowment. In departing we hope that our gifts will be used properly and to their fullest extent. We thank the Juniors in advance for carrying out our wishes and we wish them the greatest of success.

We, Walda Behnke and Thelma Burbank, do will and bequeath to Harriet Barron our ability as "history sharks."

I, Elizabeth Parker, do will and bequeath to Helen Balogh my stony silence.

We, Alice Pilson, Mary Ridley, and Dorothea Gailey, do will and bequeath to future senior play aspirants our dramatic ability.

I, Mary Gulyas, do will and bequeath to Virginia Avey my ability to fathom deep geometrical problems.

I, Gloria Keppen, do will and bequeath to Mildred Ward my skill in dodging library furniture.

I, Clifford Jones, do will and bequeath to John Chiaravalli a ride in my "Crazy Six."

I, Edgar Killian, do will and bequeath to Albert Balogh my soldierly appearance.

We, John Hagopian and Ernest Hartman, do will and bequeath to Wilbur Ebling our lean and hungry look.

We, Jerry Gruitch, Geza Pasternack, and Louis Svitkovich, do will and bequeath to Benjamin Russel our ability to make a slide rule slide.

I, Angus Morrison, do will and bequeath to any fiery junior my knowledge of parliamentary law.

I, Amphion Sheldon, do will and bequeath to Bernie Winters my magical ability.

I, Albert Stull, do will and bequeath to Bela Benko my razor. I can find no use for it.

I, Albert Topor, do will and bequeath to Russel Gabbert my patented blush.

We, Stephen Vargo and Newton Baxter, do will and bequeath to John Hodi our secrets in wooing the fair sex.

I, Glover Roundtree, do will and bequeath to Edward Kleckner my great oratorical ability.

I, Carmine Scafuri, do will and bequeath to Robert Masecar my bowlegged knock knees.

We, Suzane Hovorka and Henrietta Dattner, do will and bequeath to Dorothea Harms our good-natured attitude in giving away senior pictures.

I, Dorothy Miller, do will and bequeath to Wilhelmina Davis my Irish accent.

We, Mildred Kuehn and Mollie Kovacs, do will and bequeath to Mildred Milatz our Irish brogue.

I, Agnes Havigimian, do will and bequeath to Florence Reno my pleasant disposition.

We, Anna Drumm and Eva Schenk, do will and bequeath to Mary Kempton our powerful voices.

We, Edith Karnatz and Dorothy Hoy, do will and bequeath to Elizabeth Martin our Pepsodent smiles.

I, Irene Nagy, do will and bequeath to Mildred Duschane my ambition to ruin typewriters with hi-speed typewriting.

I, Henry Krigner, do will and bequeath to George Stefansky my job of beating off the girls who insist on following me around.

I, Harold Brown, do will and bequeath to any junior who likes work my job of taking the attendance in record.

I, Douglas Gordon, do will and bequeath to David McFadden my large bunch of horsefeathers.

We, Alfred Farber and Gerald Johnson, do will and bequeath to James Hagen our retiring dispositions.

I, Phillip Hamel, do will and bequeath to any worthy junior my position on the hockey team.

I, Harry Hobley, do will and bequeath to Robert Linn a bolt from my DeLuxe Ford.

I, William Neff, do will and bequeath to Charles Balogh my ambition to drive a street car.

I, Harold Oke, do will and bequeath to Thomas Musson my ancient gym suit.

I, Louis Varga, do will and bequeath to George Rasko my fifty-page book filled with girls' addresses.

I, Glenn Steffes, do will and bequeath to John Turner my job as Prospector cartoonist.

We, Stella Szatkowski and Ethel Toth, do will and bequeath to Vera Benn our sunny dispositions.

I, Dorothy Stoll, do will and bequeath to Eleanor Frazier my ambition to become a female Paderewski.

I, Velma Srocka, do will and bequeath to Mildred Milatz my job of banging a typewriter in the publication room.

I, Bessie Hopkins, do will and bequeath to Georgina Forrest my famous haircut.

I, Lucille Emerick, do will and bequeath to Kathrine Covert my strange attraction for junior boys.

We, Lorene Golm and Dorothy Grunewald, do will and bequeath to Lorene Newton our ability to charm the senior class.

We, Evelyn Hittinger and Menetta Hecht, do will and bequeath to Anna Steffler our ambitions to become school teachers. We've lost heart.

I, Mable Scaife, do will and bequeath to Marion Smith my nymphlike qualities in flitting about the halls.

We, John Mahin and William Kamorosky, do will and bequeath to William Peters our ability to settle all group questions without a war.

Southwestern

By JERRY M. GRUITCH

How careless we came to your beautiful home,
  How thoughtlessly entered your life,
So inconstant, and fond of the follies of youth,
  With trifling and vanities rife.
Though our thoughts were capricious, we were welcomed by you,
  To your halls of perennial peace;
The spell of tradition was over these walls,
  And your strength bade fickleness cease.

Still careless, we've studied in your beautiful home;
  The cycle has turned since we came.
The years cannot alter your vigor and truth,
  But our hearts are no longer the same.
And then, at the end, what your influence has wrought,
  What power your teaching has given;
In maturity, Southwestern, your aim is achieved;
  In our hearts your purpose is driven.

Presentation of the Pick

By EARL FRIESE

When we stop to consider what we have accomplished and what there is yet to achieve, we realize that we have only begun our task. This pick symbolizes the diligence by which we have reached this first stage of our career. We have regarded this pick as a prize much sought after; and when possessed, it should be zealously guarded.

It has been the custom of the preceding classes to leave some token of friendship to their successors to inspire them on to victory and graduation.

We, the Seniors, pass this token of our friendship on to you, the Juniors, with more fame and victorious records added to its increasing glory. We hope you will take up this pick, our symbol, and carry it to greater heights than have ever been attained before, for the glory of our dear old Southwestern. We extend to you our heartiest wishes for success in the years to come.

Acceptance of Pick

By OLA LAUGHLIN

Representing the Junior class, I accept for them this symbol of the conscientious efforts of the Seniors. I am ready, as an eye witness, to testify for them, that the Class of 1929 is deserving of much praise for the way in which they have upheld the honor and the standards of Southwestern.

It is my earnest belief that every member of the Junior class will regard this pick as a means of digging deep into the vast field of knowledge. We will try to accomplish as much as you Seniors have.

As you leave this court, where you have always found justice, ready helpers, and companionship, we extend our heartiest congratulations for your past successes and best wishes for your future ones.

Presentation of Spade

By CLARA KNITLI

We are about to leave you now; but before we go, we want to leave with you this spade, which we value very highly, since it is the implement which we have used to dig our way to our final goal—graduation.

We have dug deep and have been successful; but we hope that with the aid of this cherished spade the Junior class will be able to dig deeper and find unknown riches which still remain untouched.

The Senior class of June, 1929, hope that you will continue using this spade in as worthy manner as we have, so that when you have finished your high school career, you, too, will be able to pass it on to the next Junior class unmarred and beyond criticism.

Acceptance of the Spade

By WILLIAM VOELLMIG

For three and one-half years we have been digging earnestly and have uncovered many treasures. We finally reached the point, where with our present tools we were unable to proceed further. We were aware of the fact that, in this instance, the most precious metals lay at the greatest depths. The gloomy atmosphere in our section of the Prospector camp was instantly dispelled when word was received that we were to be given this excellent tool. Our class was suddenly transposed from one of sadness to one of great rejoicing for we realized that with this spade we might uncover the priceless treasures that remained.

The quality of this implement cannot be questioned. For many years it has received the rough, harsh treatment that is typical in the use of such a tool, and still it has retained its edge.

So as representative of the 12B class, I hereby formally accept this spade, promising that we will do our best to put it to the same good use it has been subject to when in the possession of yours and previous classes.

all going to work hard, so that we can bring fame to Southwestern. We will make our friends, parents, and teachers proud of us, because that is about the only way we can repay them for the many sacrifices they made for us.

And because we are so ambitious and industrious, I know it won't be long before we hear of a great deed or good work which some one of you has done. They will be able to point to you with pride and say, "He is from that wonderful class of June, 1929"—a class which I know none of us will ever be able to forget.

As I say farewell to our faculty and teachers, I know I express the feelings of every classmate when I say that each one of us is going to strive to bring more honor and fame than has ever before been brought to the name of Southwestern High School.

SENIORS PRESENT ONE-ACT PLAYS

ON May sixteenth and seventeenth, the June Class of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine presented two one-act plays and a novelty act—"The Eligible Mr. Bangs," "The Londonderry Air," and "Home, Sweet Home the World Around." The one-act plays were a deviation from the customary three-act plays usually presented by graduating classes.

"The eligible Mr. Bangs" was coached by Miss Tucker, one of the sponsors of the senior boys. The members of the cast are as follows: Jane Foster, Alice Pilson; Lucille Morgan, Ruth Uhleman and Dolly Alexander; Tom Foster, James Nelson; Leighton Bangs, Kenneth Lindquist and Herbert Ockenfels.

Alice Pilson as Jane Foster, with her husband, James Nelson, as Tom Foster, in "The Eligible Mr. Bangs," made a concerted effort to marry Lucille Morgan, played by Ruth Uhleman and Dolly Alexander, to Leighton Bangs, as portrayed by Kenneth Lindquist, with Herbert Ockenfels as understudy. Mr. Bangs holds a prejudice against the unmarried fair sex because he thinks that they are forever scheming to catch an unwary man in the toils and marry him. But Mr. Bangs is in love with Lucille, although he dislikes to admit the fact. Jane brings the two together once more after they have met, and introduces Lucille.

Who can imagine James Nelson as the "henpecked" husband taking orders from Jane?

"The Londonderry Air" has a unique setting. Old Ireland, with Dorothea Gailey acting in the capacity of a "bound-out" girl, William Csircsu as the pedler, Mary Ridley as the Widow Boggs, and Frank Taylor the Widow Boggs' son, give a phase of life unprecedented.

The Pedler stops at the house of Widow Boggs to ask Irish Colleen, Dorothea Gailey, for something to eat. Tramps, says Dorothy, are against her principles; but talk so wins her over that she burns two batches of cookies, gives the tramp the pig's buttermilk, the Widow Boggs' son "the air," and herself to the Pedler as his wife. Frank Taylor, Dorothea's prospective husband, is forever forgetting to tell Dorothea that he loves her. "Once is enough," he holds.

"Home, Sweet Home, the World Around" presented Thomas Wood as a typical Englishman. Alfred Farber and Aluva Miller represented Germany; Elsie Peterson, Scotland; Esther Dittman represented Italy; Mollie Kovacs and Irene Demchak, typical Hungarian dancers; Dorothy Miller a dashing Russian maiden; Steven Scafuri a Chinese laundryman; Irene Becsky, a fair Spanish senorita, with Kenneth Lindquist as the gay cabellero, while Eleanor Diedrich and Willard Shumate represented typical American youth.

Music was furnished by the Southwestern orchestra.

The Senior Class wishes to express its appreciation to all who helped make these plays a success: Miss Kruke and Miss Tucker, the coaches; Miss Yocum, who supervised the dances; Miss Green, Mrs. Goodrich, and Frank Floreck, who aided with the makeup; Miss Snelling and the orchestra, who contributed the music; Miss Cornville and Mr. Mote, who designed and made the stage settings.

I, Albert Springstein, do will and bequeath to George Graybill my florist instinct in picking out the largest dandelions on the front lawn.

I, Mildred Handyside, do will and bequeath to Kathryn Hobar my strange characteristic of watching the clock.

We, Myrtle Parker and Elveretta Simpkins, do will and bequeath to Margaret Steffler our ability to look pretty when the photographer says, "Watch the birdie."

I, Anna Sukenik, do will and bequeath to Rose Shaw my quietness in class.

I, Mable Sholtz, do will and bequeath to Dorothy Helwig my quaint southern twang.

We, Marian Kerr and Lillian Malwitz, do will and bequeath to Velma Simon our pinafores to be used at the class banquet.

I, Mable Schamp, do will and bequeath to Della Sidner my ability to mitigate humor.

I, Floyd Page, do will and bequeath to Frank Pearson my ability to grow a moustache.

I, Julius Pavella, do will and bequeath to Richard Phillpott my ability to hit in the pinches.

I, Louis Guylas, do will and bequeath to Fred Warbelow my rather small pair of shoes.

I, Wm. Carney, do will and bequeath to Oren Tauck my ability to get English assignments in on time.

I, Eleanor Diedrich, do will and bequeath to Roberta Glenn my school-girl complexion.

We, Fern and Olive Blair, do will and bequeath to Irene Szabo our attentive attitudes at record.

Duly signed, sealed, and notarized, this eighth day of June, in the year 1929.

Southwestern School Orchestra

The Orchestra began the new term with a membership of forty-four, an increase of twenty-one over the previous term. Under the direction of Miss Snelling, it is hoped that it will be even larger next semester.

The outstanding events of the term for the Orchestra were the night school commencement exercises, the commencement program on June 19, and senior plays on May 16 and 17.

Among the selections which they played are: "Liebestraum," by Liszt; "Londonderry Air," by Roberts; "Les Bohemians," by Brown; "Our Director," by Bigelow, and "Turkish March," by Beethoven.

Five boys are members of the All City Orchestra, which meets at Cass every week. They are Bondy Lubonvisky, Gabriel Sitas, William Csircsu, Joe Wash, and Bella Marossi.

Band Has Increased Membership

The Senior Band has grown this semester from a membership of nineteen to twenty-nine. The band has shown steady growth since its inception, four years ago. Mr. Weiland, the bandmaster, hopes this growth will continue in the future.

At "Open House" the Southwestern Band gave its first public performance of a number entitled, "The Sunny South Selection," by Lampe. They also played many other stirring marches, including Sousa's march, "Thunderer."

Mr. Weiland feels honored because eight boys of the Southwestern band are in the All-City organization. These boys are Ithamar Kriebel, Joseph Baker, Andrew Szilagyi, Kenneth Himes, Geza Pasternak, Duane Flynn, Oliver Miller, and James Baker.

The Junior Band, which meets the first hour, is one of the best Mr. Weiland has ever had. Most of the members of the Junior division are having their first experience in band work, and many are using new instruments. The greater part of their time has been spent in practicing exercises. Peter Szatkowski, Billy Jenkins, Harry Ackley, Harold Hunt, John Franklin, Wallace Oliver, Joe Orban, Frank Horgos, Julius Horvat, Harlan Foster, Walter Missell, Roy Tracey, Chester Rickert, Joe Bonis, Edward Bicker, Leo Ralph, Thomas Odom, James Kovach, Norman Brown, Fred Morgan, Carl Linck, Burge Kimzey, and Joe Nagy belong to the Junior band.

COUNCIL AIDS STUDENT ACTIVITIES

THE Senior Council forged ahead this semester under the able leadership of the officers: Jack Thompson, President; William Voellmig, Vice-President; Margaret Demchak, Secretary; and Billie Linn, Corresponding Secretary.

Miss Blew, Mrs. Nettleship, Mr. Harwick, and Mr. Stone are the sponsors.

The Council has two permanent committees, the publicity and the social committees. Edwin Oke is chairman of the publicity committee, which keeps the school informed on all athletic events and extra-curricular activities. William Voellmig heads the social committee, which makes arrangements for mixers and other social events.

Southwestern Senior Council

Scholarship and attendance were the chief issues of the semester. Each council member urged his group to improve records in both. The waste containers which the Young Men's Club promised to provide were also discussed. The attendance cup was presented to the leading group at the end of each month, and the scholarship cup was presented to the group with the highest scholarship average after each marking. The Council urged the students to co-operate in bettering the conditions in the library, lunchroom, and halls, and to increase the sales of the 100% Southwestern pins.

The Council sponsored dances for Miss Hamilton's and Miss Savage's groups.

Mr. Murdoch and Mr. Craig were frequent visitors to the Council; and Mr. Burt, Principal of Grosse Pointe High School, was an interested guest on March 5.

Every second week a member of the Junior Council was present.

Phyllis Rago, J. B. Angell, Edwin Oke, Roy Lockman, Ruth Uhleman, and Julia Siegel are honorary members of the Council.

Junior Council Sponsors Mixer

During the past semester, the Junior Student Council solved such problems as attendance, Nordstrum sports, reducing tardiness, and the necessity of buying pencil sharpeners. The mixer seemed to be the most popular subject of the semester.

A letter of sympathy was written to Miss Cansfield's parents, the Reverend and Mrs. Hartley Cansfield. At their latest meeting, the Student Council discussed the Service Club, clean-up week, the pictorial, and scholarship.

During the semester the Senior and Junior Councils exchanged visitors. A senior member attended the Junior Council and a Junior representative the Senior Council, every second week.

The sponsors of the Junior Council are Miss Treat, Miss Hett, Mr. Ryan, and Mr. Dewey.

Mr. Murdoch, Miss Spencer, Mr. Brown, Mrs. Yeatter, Miss Caplan, and Mr. Chynoweth were among the welcome visitors at Council meetings.

Junior Student Council

Girl Reserves Entertain

The Girl Reserves journeyed to Vinewood House on March 13, where they held their recognition services for eight new members. Miss MacIntosh, of the Y. W. C. A., told the story of the Holy Grail, and Alice Goodenow presided at the candle service.

Girl Reserve Officers

Under the leadership of Alice Goodenow, President; Louise Kaelin, Vice-President; Lucille Myles, Secretary; Billie Linn, Treasurer; Dollie Alexander, Inter-club Council representative; and Miss Cornville, Mrs. Gove, and Miss Savage as faculty advisers, another mile-post of prosperity can be reported for the club.

Louise Kaelin and Alice Goodenow attended the annual Mid-Winter Conference at Grand Rapids on February 15, 16, and 17. March 9 marked the date of the annual Girl Reserve banquet at Ionic Temple; sixteen Southwestern girls attended, and Phyllis Rago was the guest of honor.

The Girl Reserve and Hi-Y clubs of Western and Southwestern joined forces to work on committees for the "Older Boys' and Girls' Conference," which was held on March 11 and 12 at Immanual Presbyterian Church.

On May 1, the annual Father and Daughter banquet was enjoyed by about thirty "dads." Miss Hubbard and Miss MacIntosh were the honor guests of the evening.

Alice Goodenow was elected president for the coming semester, on May 8, and the affairs of the club were topped by the big social event of the semester, when the Hi-Y boys entertained the girls at the Western "Y" at a bunko party on May 14.

Juniors Visit Hospitals

Junior Girl Reserves

The Grace Chapter of the Girl Reserves in Nordstrum has continued its many activities this term. The girls made clothespin dolls for the children in the hospitals, and delivered them personally to the Grace and Salvation Army hospitals.

Many of the members attended the All-round Girl Reserve banquet on April 20, at the Highland Park Masonic Temple.

The girls served at the senior Father and Son banquet, which was sponsored by several Southwestern clubs. Many new girls were initiated into the club on May 21 with appropriate ceremonies.

The club officers are: President, Margaret Funk; Secretary, Clara Curtin; and Treasurer, Mary Hutton. The advisers are Miss Blue and Mrs. Yeatter.

Chemistry Club Visits Ford Plant

Although the Chemistry Club organized late in the term, it is now moving at full speed. A constitution has been adopted and officers elected. The club is limited to forty members. The club meets the first and third Tuesdays in the month. The object of the club is to promote interest in chemistry.

At the club's third meeting, a talk was given by Professor Drake on "Iron and Its Alloys." On May 15 the members made a tour through Ford's factory. They visited the glass furnaces, coke ovens, and steel furnaces, where they watched the process by which the slag is poured off. Approximately two and a half hours were needed for the journey. Interesting programs were enjoyed by the members during the term. Trips through the salt block on Fort Street and other places of interest are planned for the future.

The officers are Theodore Swoboda, President; Roy Lockeman, Vice-President; Margaret Demchak, Secretary; Louise Kaelin, Corresponding Secretary; William Adderly, Treasurer; and Elsie Peterson, Reporter. Miss Batie is faculty adviser of the club.

SENIOR HI-Y HAS ACTIVE SEMESTER

The Senior Hi-Y

The boys of the Southwestern Senior Hi-Y have seen their aim, which was to be one of the most serviceable clubs in the school, fulfilled. Today the Hi-Y is one of the most outstanding organizations in Southwestern.

After the election and installation of the officers things began to buzz for the club. The first event the Hi-Y undertook was the Father-Son banquet. With the assistance of the S. Y. M. C. and the Midget Club, this affair was carried out successfully.

At the regular business meetings, the club made elaborate plans that included a definite program for the entire term. Right along, their popularity and service to the school were steadily growing. Then came the Western Older Boys' and Girls' Conference, which the Hi-Y and Girl Reserves efficiently sponsored. Boys of the Southwestern Hi-Y attended to registrations and official business connected with this event.

In addition to the Older Boys' and Girls' Conference and the Father and Son banquet, the Hi-Y undertook other projects. They had basketball score cards printed, and they distributed the score cards at the Western game. The managing of a second-hand book store is a service the Hi-Y expects to render the students of Southwestern next semester. The boys will accept students' used textbooks and sell them at a fair price for a small commission. As a special service to seniors, the Senior Hi-Y is buying a volume of books called "Vocational Guides," which will assist seniors in choosing their vocations. The boys expect to install a newer and better basketball score board in the gym.

A real, live club, the Hi-Y boys have enjoyed social events and weekly entertainment regularly. One of the social events was a "wiener" roast held with the Domecon Club. Everyone turned out for this event; and what fun was missed was not worth having. The final and biggest social event of the season was a party held for the Girl Reserves. This event topped one of the Senior Hi-Y's most active semesters.

The officers are Harold Oke, President; Randal Gray, Vice-President; John Mahin, Secretary; and William Voellmig, Treasurer.

Torch Hi-Y Furnish School Handbook

Several of the Torch Hi-Y meetings in 1929 were held at the Western "Y"; among these were the "Induction" service, initiation, swims, and social gatherings. Twelve initiates were given the once over and were accepted into full-fledged membership.

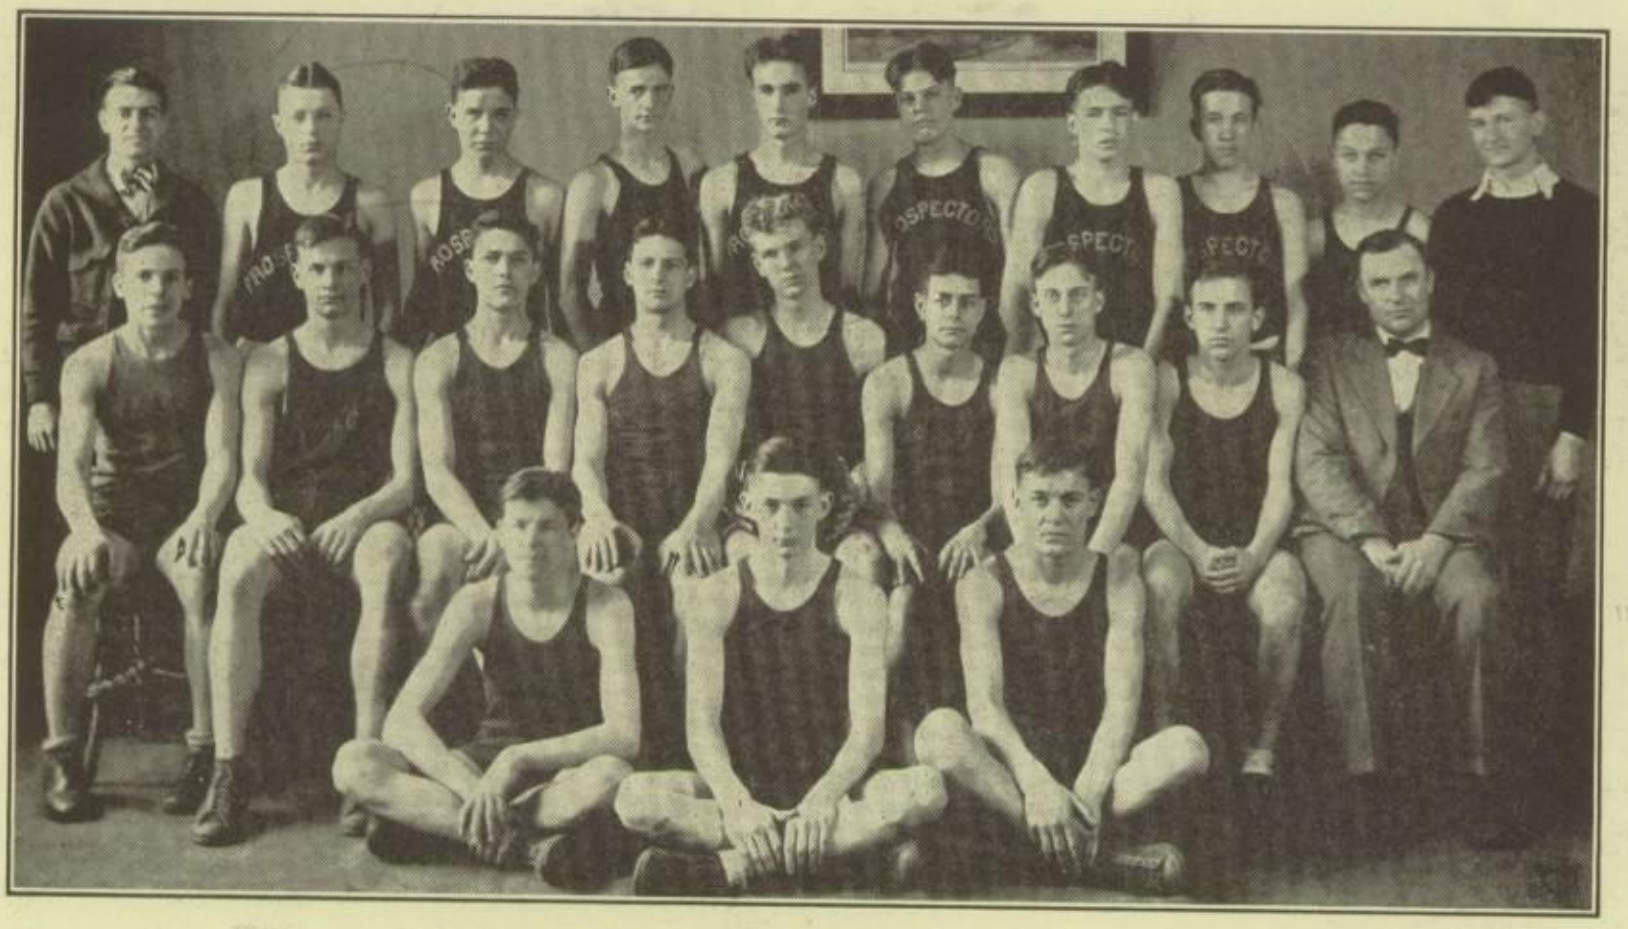
The Blue Chapter has prospered under the leadership of Mr. Bronson and the officers: Arthur Riopelle, President; William Icenhaurer, Vice-President; Harold Langley, Secretary; Hazen Hunt, Treasurer. Robert Fox is president of the Gold Chapter; Kenneth Himes is Vice-President; George Capen, Secretary; and Gordon Payne, Treasurer. Mr. Musson is adviser of the "Gold" boys.

The Blue Chapter

The Gold Chapter

About the middle of the semester, the Hi-Y put out a book containing the names and descriptions of all the clubs, their standards, and requirements; besides this information the book contains the school yells and the school song. A copy of this book was presented to the Student Council by a representative of the Torch Hi-Y. Next September a copy of this book will be presented to each incoming 9B, so that these students may select their activities intelligently.

A Glorious Flourish



The Prospector Basketball Squad for 1929

THE 1928-29 basketball season was a fair success. In the pre-season games things looked rather dark, for the Southwestern team lost to the alumni, 46 to 19, and to Fordson High, 38 to 29. But the team was more or less in the throes of construction, and different combinations were being tried out in an effort to weld a good team.

Southwestern's first victim in league play was Central, by a score of 28 to 15. Southwestern revealed a smooth working quintet, with Bator and Scafuri setting the example. Thompson established himself as one of the best centers in the city, and Shumate and Wood were not far behind.

In a non-league game, Northern, destined to become the city champions, forced Southwestern to take the short end of the count, 32 to 19. Northern's short passing game and bewildering floor work were too much for the Prospectors, and they were forced to bow.

On February 1, the Prospectors engaged Highland Park to decide who was to stay in first place on the West Side. Weakening in the last quarter, Southwestern was forced to take the count, 22 to 19, after leading at the end of the third quarter, 17 to 13. Insertion of fresh players did not stem the tide. In defeat, the Prospectors developed grit and determination, which were fast making them a badly feared team.

The next team which tried to stop the Blue and Gold was Northwestern, city and state champion of the previous season, on Friday, February 8. Northwestern was forced to submit, 19 to 18, after making a gallant bid to win. Bator and Scafuri played sensational basketball, and Wood's guarding was phenomenal. Hachodorian was a thorn for the Prospectors all the way.

The Blue and Gold team reached its apex of power and form in the Redford game, February 15, when Redford lost, 26 to 22. Southwestern was going along like a well-oiled machine, piling up point after point, and checking the Huskies whenever they threatened. For the first time the team had really found itself, and the Southwestern rooters were delirious with joy.

Southwestern journeyed to Western, its traditional rival, for its next game on February 22, and Southwestern was routed, 25 to 6. Southwestern's attack, minus its main cog, failed to function, and its defense was caught flat-footed time and again; they were forced to suffer the worst defeat a Prospector team has ever suffered.

The team met Cass Tech on the home court on March 1, and though Southwestern, figthing hard, managed to tie the score in the last quarter, they were defeated, 22 to 21. This defeat put six teams in tie for second place,—Southwestern, Northwestern, Western, Redford, Cass, and Central, and necessitated a play-off for the position to determine the team to play the runner-up on the east side.

Southwestern drew Northwestern in the play-off, and was forced to accept defeat, 21 to 16. The game was played at Central High on March 6. But though bowing in defeat, the Prospectors scored eleven points in the last quarter, a remarkable feat. That closed the Southwestern basketball season with a glorious flourish and with head held proudly high, instead of low in dejection.

Southwestern scored a total of 325 points to their opponents' 342. They won six games and lost eight. In league play they broke even, with three victories and three defeats.

The second team had a successful season with eleven victories and two defeats; and some promising material was uncovered.

Girls Display Natatorial Skill

Girls' Swimming Team

The Prospector girls' swimming team deserves praise, for they won three of four scheduled meets during this last season; they lost only to Northwestern, contestant for first place.

The team had no "senior swimmers' 'this season. The two girls who won places in the city meet last year were not on the team. Harriet Hull, who placed in the 50-yard back-stroke, had graduated, and Katherine Nason, who had secured second and third places in the 25-yard and 50-yard crawl, had transferred to Cass. There were a number of veterans on the team this term; they were Bourbonais, Hopkins, Gardiner, Henig, Bargi, and Betty Giauque.

At the first meet, January 21, at Northwestern, the Prospectors were defeated with a score of 103 to 23.

Redford was the next opponent. The meet was held in the Huskies' pool, on February 13. At the end of a hard battle in which the teams were very evenly matched, the Southwestern mermaids were given the decision by one point. The total score was 26 to 27.

On February 20, the lassies went to Western, where they were again victorious. The Scotten Avenue girls were downed, 39 to 32.

A return meet was engaged on April 9, with Western at Southwestern. Western was unsuccessful in this attempt to vanquish the Prospector mermaids. The Blue and Gold won, 48 to 23.

Northwestern played hostess to Southwestern on March 14, where they entertained the team with a delightful splash party.

Hockey Team Plays at Olympia

Southwestern's second hockey season has come and gone. The hockey team had a fairly good season for a school which had entered a team for the second time in its history. The team was under the able direction of Coaches Wietersen and Strohmer. The team played ties with Hamtramck and Highland Park, and beat Northeastern. Two boys acted as captains during the season. Randall Gray was bench captain, and Homer Riepen, playing captain.

Eleven boys received letters. All the games were played at the Olympia, the home of the Cougars and the Olympics, who are Detroit's hockey representatives in the major leagues.

The scores:

Southwestern, 0; Hamtramck, 0.
Southwestern, 1; Highland Park, 1
Southwestern, 3; Northeastern, 0.
Southwestern, 0; Northern, 4.
Southwestern, 1; Northwestern, 5.
Southwestern, 0; Redford, 3.
Southwestern, 0; Western, 6.
Southwestern, 0; Cass, 9.
Southwestern, 0; Central, 2.

Natators Lose Three Veterans

Boy Natators

The Southwestern High School natators had a very poor season in 1929, when victories are set down against defeats; but from the standpoint of organization, the team ranged with the best in the city. For the first time in many years, the schedule was followed to the letter and the whole team "stuck" together to the end. This was due to the splendid coaching of Archie Hogan and to the fighting spirit of Captain J. B. Angell. The Prospector splashers will have a veteran squad for next year, and much is expected of them. Those graduating are Captain Angell, Paul Dinger, Anthony Sargenti, and Louis

Track Team Bows to Old Rivals

The Southwestern outdoor track team participated in three meets during this season, besides taking part in the city meet, with which the track schedule came to a close. In a triangular meet with Central and Hamtramck, the Prospectors were forced to take third place.

In their second triangular meet of the season, with Highland Park and U. of D. High, the Southwestern boys placed second.

Western and Southwestern engaged in an exciting track meet, from which the Cowboys emerged the victor by the score of 73 to 40. This was the final meet before the city and state meets.

The boys who composed the outdoor track squad for the season are H. Messenger, E. Manners, C. Prout, L. Rinna, M. Sullivan, O. Tauck, L. Tyrna, M. Dorrington, L. Horvath, Z. Galarwicz, L. Atkinson, A. Banonis, F. Bolog, Ed Bator, T. Cleveland, A. Farber, G. Hughes, A. Hogan, P. Howel, K. Himes, C. Jones, E. Eellean, W. Lawrenz, J. Mahin, E. Kleckner, and C. Manuik.

Netmen Have Veteran Team

Prospector Netmen

In the current schedule, Southwestern netmen won from the championship Highland Parkers and lost to Central and Northwestern. The team has four veterans of former campaigns in Captain Anthony Sargenti, Thomas Wood, Ernest Klein, and Albert Topor, they were assisted by Sam Bagley, Willard Shumate, and Alex Klein.

Summaries:

CENTRAL

In the first match of the season the Prospectors looked rather slow and in need of much practice, although they carried Central to the limit in all the matches. In the singles Moses and Winton defeated Sargenti and Wood, respectively, and Klein defeated McCutcheon. In the doubles, Moss and Winton defeated Sargenti and Shumate, and McCutcheon and Steinberg defeated Alex Klein and Topor. Score, 4 to 1.

Talcott Coaches Indoor Track Squad

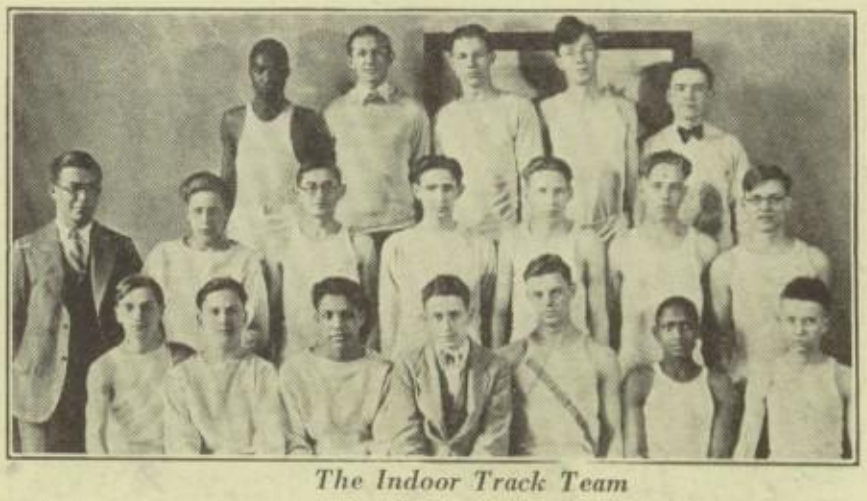
The Southwestern indoor track team was composed largely of green material this semester. The members of the team were: Taswell Cleveland, Alfred Farber, Edward Kleckner, Orin Tauch, Cadman Prout, Louis Atkinson, Michael Sullivan, Alger Banonis, Frank Balog, Vernon Hopkins, Charles Klein, Harold Messenger, William Lawrenz, Roy Sewell, and George Oldham. The boys who received letters for the indoor season are Stanley Wright, Charles Manuik, Taswell Cleveland, Alfred Farber, Edward Kleckner, Oren Tauck, Cadman Prout, Michael Sullivan, and William Lawrenz.

"Stan" Wright, in the meet against Cass Tech, lacked a fifth of a second of breaking the record in the half-mile.

The high scorers of the season were Stanley Wright, 28 points, and Taswell Cleveland, 23 points.

The results of the track meets are as follows:

January 18—Southeastern, 65; Southwestern, 30.



The Indoor Track Team

February 1—Northeastern, 77; Southwestern, 18.
February 8—Central, 67; Southwestern, 28.
February 15—Eastern, 76; Southwestern, 19.
February 22—Cass Tech, 73; Southwestern, 22.
March 1—Redford, 80; Southwestern, 15.

Junior Cagers in Semi-Finals

The Nordstrum basketball team won the West Side championship, but lost out in the city championship series. They won nine games out of thirteen.

The first game in the city semi-finals they lost to Highland Park by the score of 21 to 13. Their next game was at Barbour. This time Barbour claimed the advantage, 21 to 18.

Nordstrum's best game of the season was a one-point decision against Jefferson. The game was won in the last thirty seconds of play, when Nordstrum scored a field goal.

Coach Van Deventer had one member of his team on the all-city team. This was Nordstrum's captain, James Hagen, who was unanimous choice for center.

Games of the season:

January 3—Nordstrum defeated Neinas at Neinas by the score of 45 to 9.

January 10—Nordstrum defeated Jefferson by one point. This was scored in the last thirty seconds of play.

January 22, Hunter was defeated by the top-heavy score of 54 to 5. Captain Hagen made 24 points.

January 30—Condon was defeated at Condon by the score of 14 to 8.

February 8—Nordstrum met its first defeat on its own floor against Munger. The final score was 14 to 8.

February 22—Nordstrum won league championship by defeating Jefferson, 39 to 16.

Good Players Discovered

During the past baseball season, Nordstrum uncovered a few stars who are expected to aid Nordstrum in her fight for the championship next year. They are LeSage and Mott, pitchers; Jurczy, infielder; and McColgin, outfielder. The baseball team this year was made up of new players entirely.

April 18, the Prospector Juniors opened the season against Munger, to be defeated by a score of 11 to 7.

The second game, played against McKenzie, on April 25, proved very disastrous for Nordstrum. McKenzie won this game with a score of 6 to 5.

The first victory for Nordstrum came on May 6, when they defeated Condon, 5 to 1. Pitching this

Veterans Help Girls' Basketball

The veterans who returned this year to the Nordstrum girls' basketball squad are Julia Csekei, Elizabeth Casanyi, Eva Yiuck, Olga Frint, and Mary Jane Hubosky. Nordstrum girls met their first defeat in the home gym on January 4, with the neighboring six from Neinas Intermediate. Neinas started out in a fast way, and at the end of the half the score was 14 to 2 in their favor. The score at the end of the game was 18 to 8.

The second game of the season was played on January 9; Nordstrum was victorious in this game with Kilson. After a closely contested game in which the excellent team work of both teams was noticeable, the final score was 10 to 4 in favor of the Blue and Gold.

Track Squad Has Eight Veterans

The girls' track season has been very successful, as were their previous seasons. Previous to the scheduled meets, there were inter-gym and invitational meets. From these contests, the material for the team was selected.

The eight veterans on the squad were Louise Schmidt, Alice Goodenow, Irene Szabo, Margaret Demchak, Anna Maskelis, Marie Wickert, Thelma Peterson, and Yolanda Bargi.

Prospector Girls' Track Team

At the first meet, on May 6, Southwestern defeated Northeastern by a margin of 35 to 24. Eagling, Myers, and Demchak took first places, while Welsh, Goodenow, and Maskelis captured second.

The second contest was not so successful. The Colts won with a score of 34 to 25. On May 9, Demchak and Cogger tied for first. Second and third places were divided in proportion between the teams.

Nordstrum Girls Win League Honors

In baseball, Nordstrum girls won three straight games. With the addition of two practice games, the lassies have won five games. The earliest game of the season was a practice one with Miller, on April 10. The score was 4 to 3, a Nordstrum victory.

Again on April 27 Miller came for another practice game with Nordstrum; and again the Blue and Gold Juniors were victorious, this time leading with five runs.

The first league game was played with Munger, April 18, on Munger's diamond. The Nordstrum lassies won this game, with the score 6 to 2. The game was a hard contest, but the Juniors conquered.

The next league game was played with McKenzie in "our back yard," April 24. This game was a well played one. The score was 14 to 4 in favor of the Blue and Gold lassies. When Nordstrum and Condon met, on May 1, the Blue and Gold Juniors walked away with the score 10 to 1. Condon's team did not score a point until the last inning.

Hunter also met defeat from the Junior lassies on May 8. This game achieved Nordstrum's greatest lead, 22 to 1.

The fifth and last game of the series showed the Nordstrum girls an undefeated team, and gave them Western League championship when they won their final game from the Neinas nine on the home field, May 15. This score was 5 to 3. Ella Letenyi, Margaret Barsodi, Elizabeth and Maggie Henderson, and Louise Lockeman made runs in this game.

Maggie Henderson was the most valuable player of the Nordstrum nine. Margaret Barsodi, catcher, Elizabeth Henderson, and Ella Letenyi also proved to be good players throughout the season.

Rinno. Next year's team will be built around the nucleus made up of Archie Hogan, Vincent Kadi, George Haruczi, Richard Reno, and Sam Bagley.

HIGHLAND PARK

Southwestern's first opponent was Highland Park, national championship team. The Prospectors were literally swamped under a 66 to 6 score.

NORTHWESTERN

Although the Prospectors lost the Northwestern meet, they had the honor of taking the one first place of the year when Vincent Kadi took first in the diving event. Southwestern was again defeated, 54 to 10.

REDFORD

At Redford, the Prospectors were able to gather but six third places; and the Huskies won, 58 to 6.

WESTERN

Against their arch-enemies, Western, the Blue and Gold put up their best form of the season, although beaten, 39 to 25.

SOUTHEASTERN

Southwestern was conceded an even chance over Southeastern, but the Prospectors were defeated, 40 to 15.

CENTRAL

The Central meet was the only one held in the Prospector pool. Southwestern was swamped, 48 to 15.

CASS AND EASTERN

Cass and Eastern closed a disastrous season for the Blue and Gold, when they both defeated the Prospectors by large scores.

Prospectors Win First Nine Games

The Southwestern baseball team had a very successful season, winning nine straight games before losing to Northwestern and Southeastern. In twelve games the Prospectors scored ninety-five runs to their opponents' sixty-two, almost an average of eight runs per game. The team had good reserves for every position.

The team this year was under the leadership of Carmaine Scafuri, catcher. Most of the games were played under adverse conditions. Wet, cold weather was uncomfortable for both players and spectators. C. Scafuri, L. Horvath, and Malenski led the Prospectors in hitting during the season.

Four Veterans on Girls' Team

The Prospector girls' basketball team have closed an enviable season under the guidance of Miss Yoccum, coach, and Alice Goodenow, captain.

Four veterans, included in the large squad, were Goodenow, Kaelin, Szabo, and Demchak. The official team was composed of Goodenow and Demchak, guards; Maskelis, jumping center; Kaelin, side center; and Szabo and Runkel, forwards.

The basketeers won four out of six scheduled games, and defeated only by the two champion teams, Highland Park and Western.

The first game was played on January 10, on the Colts' floor; and the Prospector girls brought home the honors with the score, 25 to 21.

Western played on the Southwestern floor, January 25. Playing a square and hard-fought game, Western defeated Southwestern, 28 to 13.

The next encounter, on February 1, proved to be quite as unsuccessful. Highland Park, the other championship team, defeated the Prospectors, 28 to 18.

The game with Commerce on February 7 proved to be the turning point, and the home team was victorious in the remaining frays. The score of this game was 24 to 9 in favor of Southwestern.

The basketeers defeated the Huskies at Redford, by a large margin, 48 to 9.

March 1 marked the final fray of the season for the team. Central, the last opponent, was defeated by nine points; the score was 25 to 16.

Girls' Basketball Team

Girl Racketeers Lose to Colts

In the first tennis match played with Northwestern, the Prospector girls lost the match to the Colts by the score of 6 to 0. But this did not discourage them, since two other matches followed, one with Redford, and the other with Western.

Edna Kirsten, Bessie Hopkins, Irene Becsky, and Helen Henig are all veterans, and the other girls who made up the team are newcomers.

The new members of the squad have played good games.

The team played in the following order: First singles, Edna Kirsten; second, Bessie Hopkins; third, Naomi Masser; first doubles, Irene Becsky and Helen Henig; second doubles, Laura Tack and Helen Sherlock.

WITH THE TENNIS TEAM

HIGHLAND PARK

Southwestern defeated a weak Highland Park team at the Ford Courts by the score of 4 to 1. Not one of the veterans from Highland Park's championship team was left for this season. Singles: Sargenti defeated Bullock; Wood defeated Shile; Klein defeated Prakken. Doubles: Bullock and Freidman defeated Sargenti and Wood; Shumate and Topor defeated Masin and Prakken. Score, 4 to 1.

NORTHWESTERN

Northwestern's squad stopped the Prospectors, defeating the Blue and Gold, 4 to 1. Hecox (N. W.) defeated Sargenti (S. W.); Wood (S. W.) defeated Hammer (N. W.); Page (N. W.) defeated Klein (S. W.). Doubles: Hecox and Hammer (N W.) defeated Sargenti and Wood (S. W.); and Page and Garrison (N. W.) defeated Klein and Bagley (S. W.). Score, 4 to 1.

Biologists Choose Goldfinch

Southwestern Biology Club

The Biology Club's visit to Belle Isle, on May 10, was enjoyed by twenty-five members. They inspected the aquarium and the horticultural conservatory. Everyone was especially interested in the many plants growing in the conservatory.

Flowers have been a great interest of the club this term. One meeting was spent on "Flower Show" discussion and another on gardening. Many of the members have made flower gardens of their own this year.

The club cast its vote for the goldfinch to represent our state in the pantheon of birds.

The scrap book, which was started in October, 1928, is being filled up with pictures and articles on the subject of biology. These pictures and articles were brought in during the semester by the members.

At the end of the term the seniors were given a banquet.

The club organized in April, 1928; Lela Bagozzi was the first president. With the help of Miss Hamilton, a great deal has been accomplished.

The club extends a hearty welcome to the students who have studied biology and wish to join.

The officers are: President, Stella Szatkowski; Vice-President, Edith Karnatz; Secretary, Evelyn Hittinger; Treasurer, Bessie Hopkins. Irene Nagy was appointed to take care of the scrap book this term.

Dramatic Club Presents "Patsy"

The Girls' Dramatic Club has again completed another semester of success and interest.

On April 10, the girls were entertained by the Young Men's Club.

"Patsy," the play given by the club May 29, included Louise Kaelin, Marion Smith, Lucille Myles, Ruth Leonard, Alice Goodenow, Mildred McColgin, Hazel Fleck, Clara Knitli, and Helen Kleiman. The proceeds were used to purchase a bronze plaque to honor the girl graduate who excels in scholarship, sports, and leadership.

Girls' Dramatic Club

The semester was closed with an annual banquet on June 17.

Officers for the semester were: President, Irene Demchak; Vice-President, Lucille Myles; Secretary, Ruth Uhleman; Corresponding Secretary, Wilhelmina Davis; Treasurer, Clara Knitli.

Bibliotheca Club Aids in Library

The members of the Bibliotheca Club have been working hard to carry out the purpose of the club, which is to improve the library, and promote interest in library work.

The club has purchased a bulletin board this term, which is kept in active use.

The pamphlet, picture, and clipping file has been considerably enlarged this semester. A great many donations have been brought in from teachers and students.

The Librarians

There are forty-two students taking the library methods' course this semester, thirty-nine girls and two boys.

All the members of the club have taken the library methods' course and know in what way the library may be improved.

The officers are: Gloria Keppen, President; Stella Szatkowski, Vice-President; Esther Dittman, Secretary; Virginia Bayous, Treasurer; Agnes Bourne, Prospector Reporter.

Miss Doll and Miss Casemore have helped much in making the club a success.

Junior Service Club in Action

Nordstrum Service Club

The Nordstrum Service Club had a very successful season, under the leadership of Pauline Spiece and the president, Ray Clift. Mr. Brown, Mr. Ryan, and Mrs. Charles are the sponsors this year. They have helped to make this year's Junior Service Club the best that it has ever been.

The main item of the year was the adoption of a constitution, that provides all the articles and by-laws governing the organization. It was written by Ray Clift and John Ziegler. Many committees provided the club with interest. A scholarship committee was appointed; Joe Sappo acted as chairman, while Hazel Fletcher and Fred Morgan were assistants. Their duty was to look up all the marks of the members and to see that every member had good enough marks to be eligible for membership. Hazel Streiber, chairman, and her helpers, Charles Chene, Lloyd Nauenbuer, and Irene Gulyas were chosen for the visitors' committee. Their duty was to see that there was a visitor present at every meeting.

Ray Clift and Helen Gardner took charge of publicity. They had to announce at each meeting the important events going on in school, such as games, club meetings, and parties.

Another very important matter that was taken care of by the Service Club was clearing the halls of Nordstrum at the end of the seventh hour. Any Nordstrum student not out of the building on time, or without a regular permit, was taken to the office by the hall guard.

The officers of the Service Club are: President, Ray Clift; Vice-President, Helen Gardner; Secretary and Treasurer, John Ziegler; Assistant Secretary, Theresa Belanger.

R. O. T. C. Gains Honors

The Southwestern Reserve Officers Training Corps, better known as the R. O. T. C., consists of ninety-four members. Several second and third-year men have been promoted this spring to higher ranks.

Albert Kish, formerly captain of the Southwestern R. O. T. S., was elected major of the third battalion, composed of three schools—Northwestern, Western, and Southwestern. Among other promotions to higher rank, Robert Harcourt has been elected captain of the Southwestern unit; Emerson Lake, first lieutenant; Walter Everingham, second lieutenant; and Roy Lockman, first sergeant.

The R. O. T. C. conducted a review of the third battalion at Belle Isle on May 11. The Southwestern unit was inspected by officials from the United States Army on Thursday morning, May 16. General knowledge of military tactics was considered by the officials in judging the unit.

Formations were held every Thursday morning during the semester at 7:15 o'clock, under the direction of Lieutenant Yeager. Early in the year, the boys began training by practicing the facings and the manual of arms. They studied the rise and the component parts of a rifle, and prepared for weekly inspections by Colonel Young. On May 15, Colonel Anderson of the U. S. Army made a general inspection.

The R. O. T. C. held its annual field meet in June at Navin Field.

Service Club Receives Co-operation

The co-operation extended by the students of Southwestern has been the keynote of success for the Service Club.

For the first time in the history of the school, the students, in form of the Service Club, have taken over the supervision of the lunch room and the projest has been a success. There have been few reports of misconduct by the students in the halls during the past year and Southwestern is proud of the record. This proves the capability of the students to care for themselves.

Southwestern Service Club

Another feature of the club is the ushering at all the events in the auditorium. The members will usher for the seniors at Commencement at City College.

With great pleasure and with all sincerity Lieutenant Yeager takes this opportunity to thank all the students of Southwestern and the members of the club who have contributed to the success of the Service Club.

Rules of Cercle Francais Changed

Many changes have taken place in the rules of the Cercle Francais this semester. The rule of having to have at least two terms of French for membership in the club has been changed to a one-term requirement.

Gluck Auf Verein and Cercle Francais considered merging and forming a Modern Language Club, but it was decided that each organization should continue as a separate club.

The officers of the club are Betty Giauque, President; Dorothea Davenport, Vice-President; Rose Petrik, Corresponding Secretary; Helen Jurkshat, Treasurer; Laura Tack, Secretary; and Stella Szatkowski, Reporter.

Much of the club's progress is due to the efforts of Mrs. Cansfield, the adviser of the club.

S. Y. M. C. Gives Dramatic Club Party

The Officers

The twenty-three members of the Young Men's Club had a splendid time this term. They started off with the initiation and a banquet for the new members.

During the semester the members sold megaphones, basketball tickets, "High Jinks" tickets for City College, and season pins for the spring games. On April 20, the boys played a basketball game with the alumni. A second team also played with the senior Hi-Y Club. One-half the money taken in for the two games was given to the athletic department.

The club had charge of the mass meetings again this term. One of the peppiest took place before the Western game on February 21.

At the Father and Son banquet, Jerry Gruitch was toastmaster and Archie Hogan and J. B. Angell, cheer leaders. On April 10, the boys gave the Girls' Dramatic Club a party in the gym.

The cups in the hall were cleaned during the clean-up campaign.

The club has agreed to aid the Hi-Y in putting the second-hand book store over.

The officers for the club are Archie Hogan, President; Jerry Gruitch, Vice-President; Ernie Wirth, Secretary; Jack Thompson, Treasurer; and Jack Efrusy, Corresponding Secretary. Miss Tucker, Mrs. Goodrich, and Mr. Becker are the advisers.

NORDSTRUM GIRL PLAYERS

On January 16, Condon and Nordstrum met in the most interesting and closest game played in the basketball season. At the end of the first half the score stood tie, 10 to 10.

In the second half, both teams played hard, with good team work. But the score at the finish was 21 to 19 in favor of Condon.

Nordstrum lassies played their first game away from home with Hunter, January 23. At the sound of the whistle, Nordstrum carried the ball down the gym to make several baskets. At the end of the first quarter, the score was 12 to 11 in favor of the Blue and Gold; but in the second half, both teams showed each other that they could play basketball. The final quarter ended with Hunter in the lead, 24 to 17.

E. H. R. Club Maintains Clinic

The Ellen H. Richards Club opened the semester with the initiation of twelve new members. Following the initiation they had a splendid chop suey dinner. Miss Amberson, guest at the dinner party, expressed the hope that the girls would keep up their good work in the clinic, as they had done the three preceding semesters. Mrs. Wilson and Miss Becker, the sponsors of the club, welcomed the new members into the club.

The club was entertained by Mr. Ettinger on April 25, with the customary wit and humor.

The club has been very successful this term in selling Royal Baking Powder cook books.

Although the senior farewell was a solemn occasion, the girls had a good time. The club is sorry to lose its senior members. The executive board of the club was made up of Helen Emick, President; Velma Srocka, Viec-President; Ellen Fadely, Corresponding Secretary; and Ida Benko, Treasurer.

GLEE CLUB SINGS AT CASS

Senior Boys' Glee Club

The senior Glee Clubs participated in the annual May Festival, presented in Cass Technical High School Auditorium, May 10. The program was given by the combined high school music departments of the city, under the direction of Thomas H. Chilvers, Supervisor of Music in the Detroit Public Schools, and Arthur H. V. Searle, Supervising Instructor of High School Music. The high school girls' glee clubs, directed by Harry Seitz, sang "Lorelei," by Liszt, and "Butterfly," by Delibes. The combined high school chorus, under the direction of Pearl Minick, sang "Tannhauser," by Wagner; and the junior girls' glee clubs, with Miss Grace Jones leading, sang charmingly.

The Boys' Glee Club was represented in the combined boys' chorus by five boys. Their songs were "Loch Lomond" and "The Hunters Loud Halloo," the latter by Geoffrey O'Hara.

The members of the music department are very proud of the fact that Southwestern was represented in every number on the program.

Junior Glee Club Prepare for Festival

The Junior Boys' Glee Club began practicing on March 14 for the annual Intermediate May Festival, held at Cass High School on May 8. The boys sang three songs at this festival, "The Green Cathedral," which they sang with the girls; "Annie Laurie," and "The Old Folks at Home."

Miss Snelling, the director, worked diligently to finish the songs in time for the May Festival. She was rewarded by the excellent manner in which the boys sang and conducted themselves at the affair.

The Junior Girls' Glee Club also spent a very interesting semester planning for the festival. The girls began when the new members entered in October.

The girls went to Cass, May 8, for the first night of the festival. They sang "The Folk Song," and "Hush, My Babe." A mixed chorus of boys and girls from Southwestern was directed by Miss Starr.

Mrs. McFarlane is the director of the junior girls.

Poetry Club Progresses Rapidly

The members of the Poetry Club have progressed rapidly this term. Everyone in the club has written at least one poem, in spite of the fact that members of the club are not compelled to write them.

The club meets the second Friday in every month; the members of the club give constructive criticism to those who contribute their poems at each meeting.

The officers this term are George Hughes, President; Emma Dipre, Secretary; and Edward Rohrman, Treasurer.

Latin Club Has Seventy Members

The members of Castra Caesaris have enjoyed another year of many interesting activities. The club has always fostered and encouraged worth-while social activities among its members through its afternoon meetings, theatre parties, picnics, and dinners. The membership of the club now numbers seventy, and it always has a list of applicants ready to come in. Election to its roll call is based upon scholarship and participation in social activities.

The ten new members initiated this semester are William Burns, George Matthews, Barbara Masecar, Oscar Levy, Louis Horvath, Gertrude Voellmig, Virginia Reckling, Pauline Schnierla, and Phyllis Gardner.

This year the Latin Club held a party at the Adams Theater during Al Jolson's stay in the "Singing Fool."

The officers for this term are William Voellmig, President; Bert Roffinia, Vice-President; Clara Knitli, Secretary; and Ruth Uhleman, Treasurer.

Club Has Picnic in School Back Yard

German Club

The German Club has brought to a close one of their most active semesters under the direction of their adviser, Miss Voegelin.

The club has met every second and fourth Tuesday of each month during the school year. One of the special features was an outdoor party "in our back yard." Baseball and tennis were the chief sports, and everyone had a good time. A delicious luncheon was served after the games.

On June 11, a senior farewell party will close the activities of the club for the semester.

The officers for the past year were Irene Gross, President; Edna Kirsten, Vice-President; Mary Gulyas, Secretary; and Louis Varga, Treasurer.

Book Lovers Study Literature

The Book Lovers' Club has had a very educational and interesting semester. Five new members brought the total membership to thirty-two. The purpose of this club is to learn to make worthy use of leisure time. This purpose is carried out by reading good literature and creating a spirit of fellowship. The meetings are held in the library on the third Monday of each month.

On Monday, April 15, the following officers were elected: Loraine Perry, President; Elsie Siegle, Vice-President; Mildred Jacksey, Secretary; and Edward Rohman, Treasurer.

Miss Amberson spoke on "Ivanhoe," February 11. Her talk was very enthusiastically received, and many said that they never before realized how interesting the book was until they heard Miss Amberson review it.

The club was entertained on May 13 by Mr. Miller, who spoke on "Treasures of My Library."

The sponsors of the club are Miss Amberson, Miss Doll, and Mr. Miller. They urge anyone who is really interested in learning to appreciate good literature to join the club.

game for Nordstrum, Charles LeSage allowed only two hits in seven innings.

Playing at the home field against Hunter, on May 9, Nordstrum won, with the score 16 to 4.

The last game of the season was to be played at Neinas on May 15. The game was scheduled for the Neinas field; but because of rain it was played on Nordstrum's grounds. The game was very exciting; and at the end of the seventh inning the score was 3 to 3; an extra inning was necessary. But this was not enough, and three more innings were played. During this period of time, the Nordstrum team had a lead when they took the field, but they could not keep it. Up to the eleventh inning the score was tied at the end of every period. In the Prospectors' part of the eleventh inning, however, they scored two runs, and George Mott struck out three men in the last half, to end the game. The final score was 11 to 9 in Nordstrum's favor. Both pitchers had a very good day, but Broniak, the Neinas star pitcher, did not have the hard hitting team behind him that George Mott, Nordstrum's pitcher, had. George Mott pitched the best game of the season and helped win his own game by good hitting and pitching.

Ukelele Clubs Form Merger

This year the Senior and Junior Uke Clubs were combined. The Uke Club met every Monday and Wednesday throughout the semester. For practice they were under the direction of Miss Green.

The Uke Club made their only public appearance of the semester when they played several numbers at the Parent-Teacher Association's Open House night, on April 22. The music was received with enthusiasm by the audience.

Vera Rumler is President of the club, and Mary Giddens is secretary-treasurer.

Domecon Club Banquet

Domecon Club

Characteristically active, the Domecon Club has served at several of the school banquets, the teachers' meetings, the Girl Reserves' banquet, and Southwestern Open House.

One of the best times the club had was at the wiener roast given by the Hi-Y boys. A large crowd attended and everyone had a lot of fun.

The Annual Mother and Daughter banquet, on May 8, was gala day for the club; mothers and daughters ate and made merry together.

The club has had a successful term; and much of its success is due to the sponsors, Miss Parke and Mr. Ettinger.

The officers for the semester are: President, Vesta Saurbrey; Vice-President, Betty Brightwell; Treasurer, Lorraine Perry; Secretary, Elizabeth Martin; Reporter, Lucille Emerick.

Science Club Raises Requirements

Now in its third year, the Science Club is continuing to provide a place for the activities of students interested in science.

The regular meetings are held every two weeks in 209 Nordstrum. Hubert Knoch is president. The other officers are Marion Stowe, Vice-President; George Weiss, Secretary; Peter Szluk, Chief Chemist; and Hubert Knoch, Reporter. Miss Rosenberg and Mr. Yeatter are faculty advisers.

The programs during the past semester have included some interesting moving pictures, among which were some dealing with television and the development of the telephone.

The club has recently adopted a point system to keep up interest by providing that a certain number of points must be scored on activities in science to gain membership. Members must also reach a certain score each month to keep in good standing. The club has covered a variety of science interests by allowing members to give reports and demonstrations on subjects in which they are interested.

THE PROPHET SPEAKS

gates and was on Woodward Avenue again. Walking towards Fort Street, I was met by two Salvation Army girls, Anna Sukenick and Agnes Havigimian. Dropping some change into their tambourines, I proceeded.

The apples in the window of Louis Rinna's store were irresistible. I simply had to stop and buy a few. Louie told me that Marion Kerr and Thelma Burbank were the sole owners of the K and B Millinery Stores of Michigan. He added that William Csiresu, the "cop" on the beat, would be his best customer if it were not for the fact that he always "forgot" to pay for what he ate.

Finally I came to the Woodward subway terminal. Here I boarded a local, and after paying my fare to the conductor, Glover Roundtree, I took a seat. Presently three ladies boarded the car. They were my old classmates, Lillian Malwitz, Eva Schenk, and Mable Sholtz. They seemed intensely interested in the headline of the afternoon paper, which read, "Edna Kirsten Heads U. of M." They went on to say that at a recent meeting of the Board of Regents, Miss Kirsten was elected President of the University of Michigan. At that instant Glover called out my stop and I had to leave without speaking to my old friends.

At the Hotel Merrill I was admitted by the doorman, Alger Banonis, who notified me that Edward Malensky had brought my luggage from the boat a little while before.

Thanking him I went to my rooms, where I finally shut the door upon the most wonderful trip I had ever had.

Thespians Welcome New Sponsors

The Thespian Dramatic Club opened the season by welcoming their new sponsor, Miss Mary Matthews.

At the beginning of the term, four new members were brought into the club: Beatrice Kaman, Eleanor Michell, Harma Manvogran, and Mildred Chase.

At a banquet for these new members, the table was decorated in blue and white. Much credit must be given to Pauline Schnierla, who made the table attractive. Miss Davis and Miss Savage were guests at the banquet, at which each new member had a part to perform.

During the semester, the club gave money to the Senior Student Council for a mirror for the Southwestern Girls' locker room.

President, Gertrude Voellmig; Vice-President, Lucille Shalla; Treasurer, Helen Papp; Publicity Reporter, Lucille Shalla; Secretary, Kathryn Henig, are the club officers.

Lieutenant Yeager without a joke to tell the students.
Mr. Dail at a loss as to what to say.

WALTZING—AND HOW!

Overheard while a Southwestern student was trying to master the intricacies of the waltz:

"Pivot on the balls of your feet, lightly—that's it—Ow! that's my toe; pivot on your own feet, not mine!"

"Sorry! I'll do better next time."

"Take shorter steps. Shorter! Can't you hear? What do you think this is, a foot race?"

"Try turning now. Swing your foot in a wider arc. Wider! Ugh! Good thing I fell on you and not on the floor. Next time don't trip me like that."

"Sorry."

"Put on Ramona, and we'll try to dance to it."

"Snap out of it. You're dancing now. Get that dying calf look off your face. You're not making love now."

"Sorry! Can't you say anything else?"

"Sure! Sorry."

"Swing, swing! You swing just a little better than the Belle Isle bridge."

"That's all for today. I'm all in."

"Am I progressing?"

"Oh, yes, I should say so! You had to sometime. You couldn't stay that bad forever."

WHOOPS!

There's a trick to every trade, according to one of the members of the staff—even to falling down steps. Recently the assistant circulation manager had the opportunity to navigate a flight of stairs and go partially through a solid floor. When interviewed he said, "When I think of the incident I receive a thrill and a pain in the head, not brought about by thinking. Everything happens so unexpectedly, and a feeling of depression overwhelms one as he tears through the hazy atmosphere. The steps whiz by and then—contact—the door does its work. The only thing that bothers one in such a situation is the sudden stop. After the orange zebras disappear from one's dazed vision and he has picked the splinters out of his person, he really doesn't feel like wrestling."

AND THEN CAME MR. DAIL

By Louis Tyrna

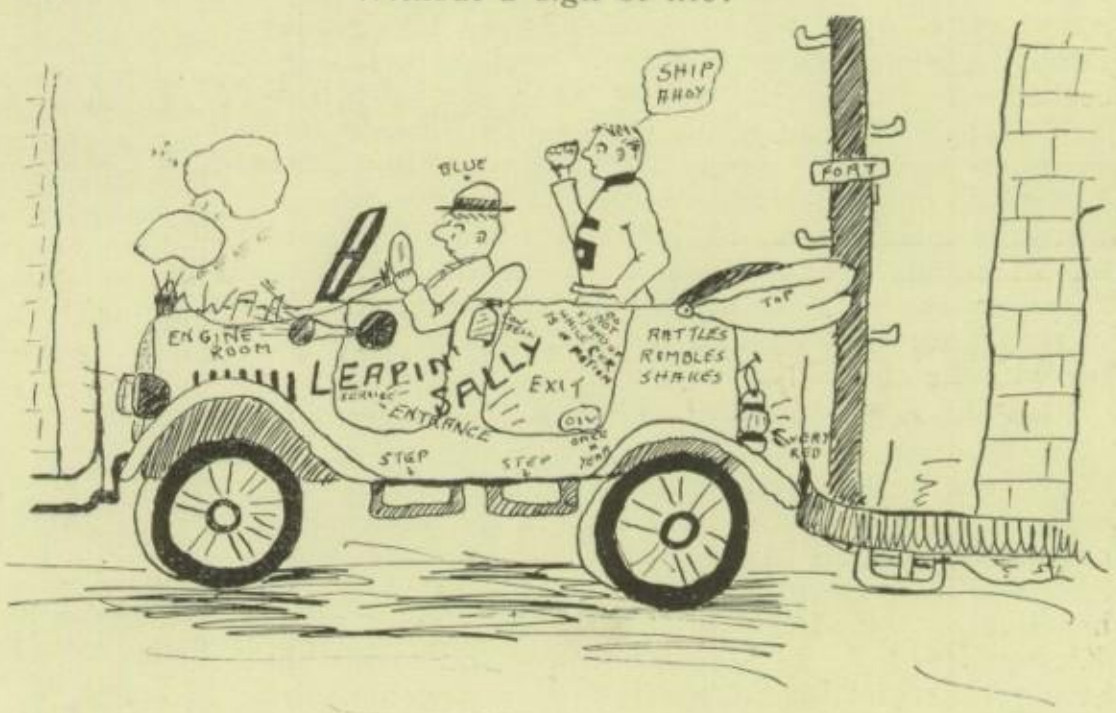
Dail a hero is today.
  He saved a maiden fair.
How? I'll tell you without delay,
  If to hear me you care.

Merrily strolled a maiden fair,
  Down the corridor one day;
When suddenly from the locker-room,
  Sprang a beast of prey.

Then from around the corner came
  Two knights who never fail;
The honorable Mr. Ettinger
  And the handsome Mr. Dail.

Now at this moment intervened
  The Hon. L. Ettinger.
Whose sense of economics worked,
  Like a clock throughout the year.

"What may be done with the beast?" he asked,
  "So brave throughout the strife.
Which lies there now so cold and still
  Without a sign of life?"



"To the bureau of the 'Lost and Found'
  I'll take it now," said he.
But when he showed them what he had,
  They simply said "N. D." ("nothing doing").

Thus ends the tale of a fierce mouse
  And of a gallant man
Who saved the life of a maiden fair.
  Her name? Miss Ackerman.
